For this lab you will need to utilize my provided code for the goAgain method. This code is provided as a .jar file (java archive file). The following instructions illustrate how to add the provided jar file to your eclipse project.

1) Create a new Java project for the lab similar to what you have always done

2) When the project is created you will see the .jar file toward the bottom of the project

3) Right click on the .jar file that is in the project and select Build Path -> Add to Build Path

4) Once you have selected and added the .jar file to your Build Path the underline in main for the goAgain method will disappear.
